

Commissioning fact sheet for clinical commissioning groups

First published by the NHS Commissioning Board Authority: July 2012
Published by the NHS Commissioning Board: October 2012

This fact sheet sets out the services to be commissioned by clinical commissioning groups (CCGs) from April 2013. It also sets out the complementary services to be commissioned by the NHS Commissioning Board (NHS CB), local authorities and Public Health England (PHE). A number of previous documents have described commissioning responsibilities, but this fact sheet is intended to be a helpful summary, with further clarity on certain aspects. It is not a substitute for legislation or guidance or your own legal advice.

In general, you as CCGs will be responsible for commissioning health services to meet all the reasonable requirements of your patients, with the exception of:

- certain services commissioned directly by the NHS CB;
- health improvement services commissioned by local authorities; and
- health protection and promotion services provided by PHE.

You will play a key role in promoting integrated care and, as a member of your local health and wellbeing board(s), in assessing local needs and strategic priorities. This will mean working collaboratively with local authorities and the NHSCB. You may decide to pool budgets or have collaborative commissioning arrangements.

Your commissioning responsibilities (for the areas set out in part 1) will include:

- planning services, based on assessing the needs of your local population;
- securing services that meet those needs; and
- monitoring the quality of care provided.

In most cases, you will also be responsible for meeting the cost of the services provided. There will be some services that you commission for your geographic area (e.g. A&E services) where the costs for an individual patient may be charged to another CCG (i.e. in an area where the patient is registered or, if unregistered, where they live). There will be guidance on this in due course, which it is expected will follow the current 'responsible commissioner' arrangements.

Local authorities will take the lead for improving health and coordinating local efforts to protect the public's health and wellbeing. They will also provide advice and expertise on how to ensure that the health services you commission best improve population health and reduce health inequalities. For health improvement activities transferring to local authorities, such as smoking cessation, sexual health and drug/alcohol services, you may wish to agree joint commissioning arrangements. You should also consider how best to work with local authorities to ensure that health improvement activities are an integral part of the healthcare services that you commission.¹

A new executive agency, PHE, will take the lead for public health at a national level. It will deliver a number of national health services and support the development of the public health workforce. The NHS CB will also commission some public health services nationally as agreed with the Secretary of State.

This fact sheet includes information that is subject to secondary legislation. For example, the list of specialised and highly specialised services that the Board will be required to commission has not been finalised; the final list will be included in regulations, which are expected to be laid before Parliament in the Autumn.

1. Services to be commissioned by CCGs

Unless otherwise indicated (such as for urgent and emergency care), your commissioning responsibility will be for your local population. Your local population includes registered patients (some of whom may live in a different area) and unregistered patients usually resident in your area. It does not include members of the armed forces, nor their families if they are registered with Defence Medical Services (DMS) rather than a NHS GP practice, Nor does it include those detained in prison and other custodial settings.

Local authorities will provide public health advice to CCGs on the commissioning of these services.
